GRANT'S SON DEAD

Los Angeles, June 9—Jesse Root Grant, youngest son of President U. S. Grant, and his last surviving child, died yesterday at his home here, aged 76. Mr. Grant, a civil and mining engineer, retired several years ago. He is survived by two children, Major Chapman Grant, U. S. A., and Mrs. William P. Cronan.

Mr. Grant made his career independent of his father's achievements. Even in politics they were of different beliefs. He unsuccessfully sought the Presidential nomination of his party against William Jennings Bryan in 1908. In 1893 he published a volume entitled "In the Days of My Father," General Grant."
