Mrs. Grant at Night Laid in the Tomb at Husband's Side

Grave is Sealed at Son's Goodby

In the tomb rested the memory of her husband, General U. S. Grant, and her son, Julius Dent Grant. She was placed there yesterday. There will be no ceremonies today, but the interments took place privately at seven o'clock on Tuesday night.

A guard of honor from Grant Post, No. 17, O. R. & L. representatives of the Grand Monument Association, and by Ulysses S. Grant, the second of the Grant family, went to the grave of the fallen soldier, the honor guard present to prevent the use of the body. His post-humous body was solemnly placed in the monument.

Mrs. Grant's body arrived on a special train of the Pennsylvania Railroad, due in Jersey City at 9 o'clock. Another special to the city was the Presidential train, which left the city at 9 o'clock. The body was brought to the train at the Jersey City station. The guard of honor from Grant Post, No. 17, O. R. & L. representatives of the Grand Monument Association, and by Ulysses S. Grant, the second of the Grant family, arrived at the train at 9 o'clock. The body was brought to the train by the Grand Post of New York, which had been placed in the monument.

President attends Mrs. Grant's funeral. Mrs. Grant's funeral will be held on 4 streets, at 12 o'clock, and the procession to the cemetery will be led by the Grand Post of New York, which had been placed in the monument.
